They had been fishing at one place and decided to pull up anchor and move to another and Appelberg, according to Mr. Wahlstrum's story, was pulling in one of the anchors, which had sunken deeply into the soft bottom of the lake, w.en it suddenly let loose and he overbalanced and fell into the water. This tipped the boat just in time to allow a big wave to roll into it. Wahlstrum leaned to the opposite side of the boat and it turned turtle. Thus both men were in the water. The wind was strong and the lake was in consequence very rough. The men clung to the over-turned boat and could not be controlled.

Both families, and especially the mother and her four small children, have the heart-felt sympathy of the people. Both men were good swimmers. They tried to loosen the anchors and thus let the boat drift to shallow water but the rope could not be loosened. Their knives were in the boat when it capsized and were lost. They called for help but their cries were unleard on shore. Wahlstrum made two attempts to swim sahordbut the was were so strong against him that each time he turned back to the boat.

In the mean time Alfred Hanson, who was at the Danish landing noticed that he could not see the men in the boat and told some of his companions to at he believed that they were in trouble and set out in a cance to investigate. Year by year, the national destruction of life and property by fire has been mounting until the total annual loss of material wealth now approx 000. This means the wiping out . ! needed resources at the rate of about $1,870,000 a day, in addition to the destruction of 48 lives daily. In our own state during the ive years ended with 1920, our fire waste came to the great total of $53,102,397 a sum that would build 10,620 five trousand dollar homes or many miles of good road. Thus it is evident that we have been paying our full share of the tax levied by carelessness and ignorance in handling fire hazards.

ignorance in handling fire hazards.
Since most fires are preventable, the regretable devastation by hurning that takes place day after day, is largely unnecessary. It goes without saying that every effort should be made to relieve the peoper of the selfimposed burden represented by preventable fire.

Therefore, I, R. C. Vandercook,
State Fire Marshal, State of Michigan
by the authority in me vested, do designate and proclaim the period from October 2 to 9, 1922 as Fire Prevention week and I earnestly request that the proper city departments, cooperating with Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations, shall arrange interesting and educational exercises that will impress the importance of the occasion upon the public mind. I hope that every resident of the state will actively take part in the observance and that they will remove rubbish and litter and other hazards about their homes and places of business; that they will inaugurate the personal habit of careplaces of business; that they will in-eugurate the personal habit of care-fulness. I ask that our churches by fulness. Hold Your Breath

We make a big move forward if we land the new industry for Grayling. Are you behind this factory proposition with all your might, or are you sitting back and letting the few boosters do it? Within a few days it will be all settled. How much can you be depended upon to do to make it certain?

There will be a meeting Monday evening, October 2nd, at 8 p. m. at the Board of Trade rooms. Every business man and tax payer is invited to attend. Every committee appointed will be present to report on various activities.

If you aren't a booster don't you dare breathe until after this factory proposition has been definitely settled.

Good Crewds Attend Schools at Frederic and Grayling.

Crawford county's two land clearng schools which were held at Frederic and Grayling Tuesday and Wednesday were great successes from the viewpoint of local residents and the men in charge of the demonstrations. Attendance exceeded expectations at both schools and those who participated in the course of instruction were surprised at the efficiency of the modern, practical methods introduced by the corps of specialists brought here by the Michigan Agricultural college.

The Grayling secol was held on the R. Hanson farm alfalfa field which is oberated by Tony Nelson, and can be made from materials on which is oberated by Tony Nelson. Thursday from eight oclock in the morning until four in the afternoon. In the forenoon there were about 150 persons present, representing all townships. The crowd was very much larger in the afternoon, and conspicuous in the crowd was the presence of many pupils of the agricultural and science classes of the High School.

Demonstrations were made of picric seld, dynamite, and several kinds of power machinery including a gin pole stump piler and the Fordson tractor. These secols were made possible through the co-operation of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, the Atlas Powder Co., E. I. dwarf tinson Mfg. Co., the Hercules Powder Co., the A. J. The Michigan Central furnished the necessary equipment for transporting the machinery and men and was represented by W. H. Hill, agricultural agent and E. J. Leenhouts, assistant agricultural agent, for the New York Central lines, west. The six car train which included dining, sleeping and freight facilities stood in the background of the Hanson farm while stumps flew.

Among the interesting and practical devices used in connection with the schools, all of which were new in this section were Paul Bunyan's hammer, the Frost trip and the handy or scissors stone boat.

Paul Bunyan's hammer, or the male let stump puller; consisted of a log 18 inches in diameter and 30 inohes long, of ceder or white pine, through whick was a handle 6 inches in diameter and 6 feet long, of seasoned ironwood.

Although the school did not start until noon three acres of fine clay lound loam land were cleaned of t.e heavy stumpast and for the most part piled in shape for burning. The farmers attending the school at Grayling Wednesday were dinner guests of Rasmus Hanson at Shopenagon Inn that day. This added to the pleasure of the occasion according to reports.

Another revelation of the day was the way in which the Fordson tractors performed. After the stumps were blasted they finished them up by yanking them out of the ground and hauling these to the stump pile. It was remarkable the way they got around and the power thay showed. They seemed easy to operate and part of the time a young lady was doing the driving and seemed to get along as well as the veteran drivers.

Back From the Fairs.
I returned from the fairs on Monday September 18. The exhibit from Crawford County, won $75 at Bay City, $50 at Detroit, $60 at Saginaw.
Our exhibit consisted of grains and grasses, apples and vegetables, largely potatoes, and five pictures about the ree feet long, depicting scenes in Crawford County.

It attracted much attention. We gave about ten thousand circulars shout the county to those who stopped.

Cleveland, O .- An invitation to all bituminous operators of the United States to meet here October 2 with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America to devise an entirely new machinery of wage bargaining to replace that of the central competitive field which broke down prior to the recent national coal strike has been sent out from here. The main object of the conference, it was explained, is to prevent another ence also initiated an investigation of the industry concurrently with that carried on by the fact finding commis-sion to be named by President Har-

The call was signed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Thomas K. Maher, Cleveland coal operator, under authority given joint conference here last month, which subsequently resulted in the almost complete ending of the soft coal strike. Maher was chairman of this conference.

The invitation went to operators associations and to important operators known to have signed the Cleveconvention at New Orleans are promised one of the most specteresting naval has seen, according to Lieut. C. W. J. Neville, chairman of the convention naval affairs committee, who has been in Wash-ington completing arrangements. Commander Neville obtained the promise of Assistant Secretary Roosevell that he would send one battleship and a number of destroyers to participate in the program.

Arrangements have also been made to have the Eagle boats now at Jacksonville, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Galveston and St. Louis called into active service with a view to directing the annual cruise of the naval reserve men, who form their crews, to New Orleans.

A fleet of 12 hydroplanes will fly from Pensacola to New Orleans a few days before the convention and will remain on the river for exhibition flights.

White in Washington Commander Neville also arranged for invitation to the naval authorities, of England, Canada, Australia, France, Italy, Brazil and Cuba for their attendance at the naval show. A flotilla of submarines, now en route to the East from Mare Island, Cal., also may be a feature of the naval display.

SKIM CREAM MORE CLOSELY

Keeps Better During Hot Weather Skim Milk on Farm.

If it's to keep best during the warm weather and to make the highest quallty butter, cream needs to be skimmed closely.—Better butter is made from heavier cream as the fine, sandlike grains that are precipitated in churaing are more solid than the butter re sulting from thin cream. Also it will pay to ship the heavier cream, as there is no use to pay shipping charges on skim mik. It will make better feed on the farm.

The German Kaiser's Own Story

The long-awaited autobiography of Germany's deposed emperor will be published in The Chicago Daily News, beginning Tuesday, September 26, continuing in daily installments until completed.

The story is well told, and will command the attention of readers everywhere. Many of the author's opinions and statements are fantastic from the American point of view, but interest in the narrative is increased, rather than lessened, by this fact. Old controversies are sure to be revived, old discussions renewed, by the former kaiser's defense of Germany and his attacks on the leaders of other nations. For instance, he takes seriously the old absurd canard about a secret treaty against Germany and Austria, in 1897, by the United States, Great Britain and France. This is only one of his declarations that will amaze—and amuse the American reader.

Beginning with a chapter on Bismarck, the ex-emperor traces history through four decades. In a general way the story is chronological, although in the opening chapters the writer often diverges into events long past, or into the remote future. But from the time he reaches the period immediately preceding the world war the story moves in rapid action and is in many respects informative, notwithstanding the author's prejudice, eccentricity, and, in many instances, his surprising misinformation.

It is a story of absorbing interest to the reader of history and of current events alike, and is bound to create a world of discussion. It deals not only with the direct events of the war, but covers a mass of most important collateral matter intimately or remotely related to the war.

Here are some of the significant "high spots" in a topical analysis of the story:

Why Bismarck West Out Diplomacy With England Tangier Visit and Moroccan Crisis Germany's Denial of War Aims Propaganda Before War Germans and Art Treasures "The Wrong of Versailles" Secret Talks with the Czar Visit to Victoria's Deathbod King Edward's "Encirclement" Failure of German Diplomacy Attitude of Sir Edward Gray

Emperor Karl of Austria Swapping Zanzibar for Heligoland Chamberlain Offer of Alliance Russians as Asiatics Germany's Naval Plans Charges of Atrocities Wilson and the 14 Points Germany When Defeat Came Fatherland and World's Opinion The Flight to Holland Why Kaiser Avoided Suicide Germany of the Future

Publication of this remarkable autobiography began this week in The Chicago Daily News-the first installment on Tuesday, September 26. Newsdealers throughout the northwest have increased their usual supply of the paper, and can give new readers either back numbers beginning with Tuesday, or an advance "reprint" of all the chapters printed in the paper from Tuesday, September 26, to Saturday, September 30, thus insuring to every new reader "The German Kaiser's Own Story" from the beginning.

Readers who find it more convenient to get the paper by mail may send $1.00 to The Chicago Daily News, 15 North Wells street. Chicago, and get it, postage paid, daily for two months.

"OR I'LL SHOOT."

STROPSIR At Thornton Fair-child's death his son Robert learns there has been a dark period in his father's life which for almost thirty years has caused him suffer-ing. The secret is hinted at in a document left by the elder Fair-child, which also informs Robert he is now owner of a mining claim in Colorado, and advising him to see Henry Beamish, a lawyer. Beamish tells Robert his claim, a silver mine, is at Oinad, thirty-eight failes from Denver. He also warns him against a certain man, eight failes from Denver. He also warns him against a certain man. "Squint" Rodains, his father's enemy. Robert decides to go to Ohadi. On the road to Ohadi from Denver Fairchild assists a girl apparently at frenzy of haste, to change a tire on her auto. When she has left, the sheriff and a posse appear, in pursuit of a bandit. Fairchild, bewildered, misleads them as to the direction the girl had taken. At in purshit of a ballot, Asiachia bewildered, inisisads them as to the direction the girl had taken. A Chadi Fairchild is warmly greeted by "Mother" Howard, boarding-house keeper, for his father's sake. From Mother Howard Fairchild-learns something of the mystery connected with the disappearance of "Sissie" Larsen, his father's coworker in the mine. He meets the girl he had assisted, but she denies her identity. She is Anita Richmond, Judge Richmond's daughter. Visiting his claim, Fairchild is shadowed by a man he recognizes from descriptions as "Squint' Rodaine. Back in Ohad; his father's oil (riend, Harry Harkins, a Cornishnan, summoned from England Beamish to help Fairchild-halls him with Joy. The pair find hails him with joy. The pair find the mine flooded and have not suffthe mine flooded and have not sufficient funds to have it pumped dry. Later in the day "Squint" Rodaine announces that he practically saw Harkins full into the flooded mine, and evidently is drowned. Harkins being a general favorites the entire population titins out to clear the flooded mine. When the work is practically done. Harry appears It had been a shrewd trick, and the men take it as a good joke. Fairchild learns that Judge Richmond is dying, and that he and Anita are in the power of the Rodaines. They begin, as partners, to work the mine. In their hearts both fear Larsen was killed by Thernton Fairchild and his body buried by a cave-in which deburied by a cave-in stroyed the mine.

From far away the drone of the caller sounded in a voice familiar, and airchild looked up to see the narrow eved, scarred face of Squint Rodaine, who was officiating at the wheel. He tost interest in the game; backadaisically he placed the buttons on their finally to brush them all uside and desert the game. His hatred of the Ro-daines had grown to a point where he could enjoy nothing with which they were connected, where he despised everything with which they had the remotest affiliation—excepting. of course, one person. And as he rose Faircinid saw that she was just enter ing the dance hall.

Only a moment he hesitated. Maurice Rodaine, attired in a mauve frock suit and the inevitable accompanying beaver, had stopped to talk to some one at the door. She stood alone, looking about the hall, laughing and nodding-and then she looked at him! Fairchild did not wait.

From the platform at the end of the big room the fiddles had begun to aueak, and the caller was shouting his announcements. Couples began to ane up on the floor. The caller's voice

A third dance and a fourth, while in the intervals Fairchild's eves sought out the sulky, sullen form of Maurice Rodsine, flattened against the wall, eyes evil, mouth a straight line, and the blackness of hate discoloring his face. It was as so much wine to Fair-child; he felt himself really young for the first time in his life. And as the the sheriff and his two deputies, just music started again, he once more starting out of the cance hall. Five turned to his companion.

Only, however, to halt and whirl and stare in surprise. There had come a shout from the doorway, booming,

Some one laughed and jabbed his hands into the ale. Another, quickly sensing a staged surprise, followed the example. It was just the finishing touch necessary—the old-time hold-up of the old-time dance. The "bandit" strode forward.

"Certainly. But not as a deputy Who wants to volunteer?"

Half a dozen men came forward and from them the sheriff chose two. Fairchild turned to say good-by to Anita. In vain. Already Maurice Ro daine had escorted, her, apparently against her will, to a far end of the dance hall, and there was quarreling with her. Fairchild hurrled to join minutes later they were in a motor car chugging up Kentucky gulch.

Buck in Ohadi more news awaited them, Harry if Harry had been the highwayman, had gone to no expense for his outfit. The combined general store and hardware emporium of Gregg Brothers had been robbed of the articles necessary for a disguisealso the revolvers and their bullets. Robert Fairchild watched Harry placed in the solitary cell of the count jail with a spirit that could not re spond to the Cornishman's grin and his assurances that morning would bring a righting of affairs. Four charges hung heavy above him; that if horse-stealing, of burglary, of highway robbery, and worse, the final assault with attempt to kill. Fairchild turned wearlly away; he, could not find the optimism to join Harry's cheerful announcement that it would be "all right." The appearances were

It was only a short walk to the hospital and Fairchild went there, to ave with at least a ray of hope. The probing operation had been completed; the fiddler would live, and at least the charge against Harry would not be one of murder. That was a thing for which to be thankful; but there plenty to cause consternation, as Fairchild walked slowly down the dark, winding street toward the main thoroughfare. Without Harry, Fairchild now felt himself lost. Before the big, genial, eccentric Cornishman bad come into his life, he had believed, with some sort of divine ignorance, that he could carry out his ambitions by himself, with no knowledge of the tech py to guide him, and with no help gainst the enemies who seemed everywhere. Now he saw that it was impossible. More, the incidents of the night showed how swiftly those enemies were working, how sharp and

At one side was a big house—a liouse whose occupants he knew instinctively, for he had seen the shadow of a woman, bands out-stretched, as she passed the light strewn shade of a window on the sec ond floor. More, he had heard her voice, supplemented by gruffer tone.

And then it came again.

It was pleading, and at the same with the passion of a person approaching hysteria. A barking sentence answered her, something that Fairchild could not understand. He left the old board sidewalk and the better. Then every nerve within him jangled, and the black of the daskness changed to red. The Rodaines were within: he had heard first the voice of the father, then the rasping tones of the son, in upbraiding More, there had come the sobbing of a woman; instinctively Fairchild knew that it was Anita Richmond, And then:

It was her voice, high, screaming Hysteria had come-the wild, racking hysteria of a person driven to the reaking point:

"Leave this house hear me! Leave this house! Can't you see that you're killing him? Don't you dare touch me -leave this house! quiet-I won't-you're killing him, I tell_von__!"

And Fairchild waited for nothing more. A lunge, and he was on the veranda. One more spring and he had reached the door, to find it unlocked, to throw it wide and to leap into the hall. Great steps, and he had

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good — that it can't do any harm — and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

"A long time ago, the man who was then my employer told me the probable maximum salary I could earn in his business. It was substantially maximum disturbed me so desply that i carefully took an inventory of my self and then consulted some older business friends.

"One man said this to me: 'Jay, go back and make yourself so indispensable to that man that he will put more and more work in your hands, and forget all about this maximum salary.

"I have long since passed the 'maximum' set and have never had occasion to regret the decision to remain with that compenn."

In my own experience as an employer I have frequently had men and wonen come to me in a frank and friendly spirit to discuss their future. This is always anharastrant.

In my own experience as an employer I have frequently had men and women come to me in a frank and friendly spirit to discuss their future. This is always embarrassing. None of us knows what our own future will be; much less are we qualified to promise a future to anote. But this much we can say: That the man who is willing to give generously of his brains, time and energy will rise to the proper level just as surely as cream rises to the top of a milk pail.
